Biden's New Plan to Tame Covid-19 Pivots to Testing

By Sheryl Gay Stolberg

WASHINGTON — President Biden, confronting a worrisome new coronavirus variant and a potential winter surge, laid out a pandemic strategy on Thursday that includes hundreds of vaccination sites, boosters for all adults, new testing requirements for international travelers and free at-home tests.

surge 앞뒤 a sudden powerful forward or upward movement, especially by a crowd or by a natural force such as the tide. 전진행위, 진해

After nearly a year of pushing vaccination as the way out of the pandemic, Mr. Biden has been unable to overcome resistance to the shots in red states and rural areas. His new strategy shifts away from a near-singular focus on vaccination and places a fresh emphasis on testing — a tacit acknowledgment by the White House that vaccination is not enough to end the worst public health crisis in a century.

Mr. Biden's announcement came as several new cases of the Omicron variant were reported in the United States, including five people in New York State, a Minnesota resident who had recently traveled to New York City and a Colorado resident who had recently returned from southern Africa. Hawaii also reported its first known case, and California its second.

Omicron the fifteenth letter of the Greek alphabet (Ο, ο), transliterated (음역하다) as 'o'.

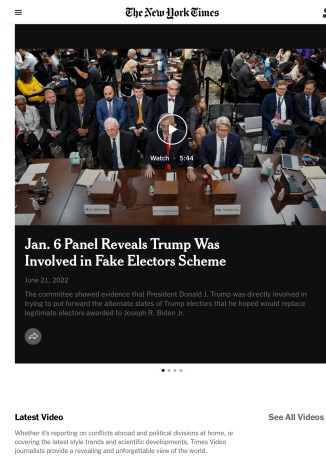

Mr. Biden's remarks at the National Institutes of Health were the second time this week that he had addressed the nation on the pandemic; on Monday he spoke about new travel restrictions he imposed last week on eight African nations.
